Objective of the Event	The event aimed to orient new students and parents, easing their transition to college life with guidance and motivation. It emphasized understanding college intricacies and the higher education landscape. Students learned about the college's facilities, including laboratories and various cells like Women Empowerment Cell, IQAC, NSS, NCC, etc. Importantly, it underscored the importance of discipline and dignity for a conducive learning environment on campus.
Description of the event
On 1st March 2021, our college commenced a three-day orientation program for new students, recognizing the significant transition from high school to college, especially amidst the challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic, which led to a delay in admissions, prompting a compressed academic year. Understanding the diverse backgrounds of incoming students and the unfamiliarity of their new environment, we designed an induction program to aid their adjustment. The schedule unfolded as follows: Day one commenced with a campus tour for students and their parents, showcasing available resources such as the library and laboratories. This was followed by enlightening sessions from esteemed guest speakers. Day two featured motivational speeches from the Principal, department heads, NSS Program Officers, and NCC Lieutenant, offering insights into college life and higher education. On the third day, mentoring sessions were conducted alongside a vibrant closing ceremony.

We integrated talent exploration activities, allowing students to exhibit their hidden skills through dance, song, and other talents, fostering interaction among peers.

Despite the challenges posed by the pandemic-induced delay in admissions, both students and parents actively engaged in the program, gaining valuable insights into college life. The induction program aimed to resolve any doubts and instill a sense of purpose in the educational journey ahead. The valedictory session marked a collaborative conclusion, emphasizing the active participation of both parents and students.

Outcome of the Event

The orientation program helped new students adapt quickly to college life despite the pandemic-induced delays, ensuring a smooth transition. By providing informative sessions and engaging activities, students gained confidence and built connections with peers and faculty. Overall, the program fostered a supportive and welcoming environment conducive to student success.
