Community internal management water contamination from agricultural chemicals, industries and water disposal. Here, livestock waste and agricultural runoff are major contributors in this village ground. Water pollution due to effluents released indiscriminately by a bio-organic products or company. Water from 16 borewells was declared as unsafe for drinking by the pollution control board (PCB) and water supply (RWS) department and water testing laboratory units located at Vitthalwadi and V. Shalgastram.

Instructions :-

1. A water tax on heavy users could deter wasteful water consumption in industry and agriculture while keeping household water prices, then consumer increased. costs of production prices due to the ideally, such a tax would help decouple economic growth from water use. Rebates for the replacement of water-wasteful appliances like toilets and showerheads are a cost effective alternative.
2. Industrial agriculture is an important contributor to water pollution many policies that incentivise organic farming and other sustainable farming practices serve to secure water source from agricultural pollutants.
3. Rainwater harvesting, recycled wastewater allows to overcome scarcity and ease pressures on groundwater and other natural water bodies, groundwater recharge is a well-known process to prevent water scarcity that allows water to move from surface water to groundwater.

4. Education is very important to solve the water crisis. To cope with future requirements of water, it is very important to radically reform consumption. It should be initiated by individual and its education should go beyond.

5. In villages implementation of direct borewell should be done. By this people can recharge wherever possible to improve the availability of water for drinking.
